

FOR THE WEDNESDAY CLASS 10/9/84

The ideas in a man's mind are hidden and secret until he expresses them through actions, or as speech, or as the visible creations and productions of his hands, or in behaviour generally. Those ideas are neither lost nor destroyed. They are a permanent part of the man's memory and character and consciousness and subconsciousness, where they have been recorded as automatically and as durably as a master phonograph disc records music. Just as a wax copy may be burnt but the music will still live on in the master disc, so the cosmos may be annihilated or disintegrate completely but the creative idea of it will still live on in the World-Mind. More, in the same way a man's body may die and disintegrate, but the creative idea of him will still remain in the World-Mind as his Soul. It will not die. It's his real Self, his perfect Self. It is the true Idea of him which is forever calling to be realized. It is the unmanifest image of God in which man is made and which he has yet to bring into manifestation in his everyday consciousness. 26.4.63

The uniqueness of each person, their difference from every other person, may be metaphysically explained as due to the effort of Infinite Mind to express itself infinitely within the finite limitation of time and space, form and appearance. 25.1.157 SL

The World-Mind is expressing through an infinite number of minds its own infinitude multiplied by infinity an infinite number of times. 27.3.25 SL

The Unit of Life: 26.4. 256 257

Good time to read the essay on Grace? Essay on Grace excerpt 2.9.67 -- 2 pages

And:

Jnaneshvar Siva and Sakti

Yoga Vasistha

OMKARA: Remember

AD: Meditation Mentalism and Glimpse