

WHERE WE MEET REALITY

THE DOUBLE VIEW and the TWO-FOLD WAY:

blue used Wednesdays
yellow highlights read 10-31

The twofold way is indispensable: on the one hand the way of self-effort, working to overcome the ego, and on the other the way of Grace, through constantly seeking to remember your true identity in the Overself. 23.5.193

How can person fully express themselves unless they fully develop themselves? The spiritual evolution which requires us to abandon the ego runs parallel to the mental evolution which requires us to perfect it. 8.1.158

The process of human evolution serves a twofold purpose. The first is to develop the physical, emotional, and intellectual characteristics. The second is to lead the individual to enquire into, and become fully conscious of, their divine origin. 26.4.253

Think of yourself as the individual and you are sure to die; think of yourself as the universal and you enter deathlessness, for the universal is always and eternally there. We know no beginning and no ending to the cosmic process. Its being IS: we can say no more. Be that rather than this--that which is as infinite and homeless as space, that which is timeless and unbroken. Take the whole of life as your own being. Do not divorce, not separate yourself from it. It is the hardest of tasks for it demands that we see our own relative insignificance amid this infinite and vast process. The change that is needed is entirely a mental one. Change your outlook and with it "heaven will be added unto you." 21.5.95

If you investigate the matter deeply enough and widely enough, you will find that happiness eludes nearly all despite the fact that they are forever seeking it. The fortunate and successful few are those who have stopped seeking with the ego alone and allow the search to be directed inwardly by the higher self. They alone can find a happiness unblemished by defects or deficiencies, a Supreme Good which is not a further source of pain and sorrow but an endless source of satisfaction and peace.

„, Fate provides us with difficulties from which it is often not possible to escape. But what must be borne may be borne in either of two ways. We may adjust our thinking so that the lessons of the experience are well learnt. Or we may drop it, for we need not carry the burden of anxiety, and remember the story of the man in the railway carriage who kept his trunk on his shoulders instead of putting it down and letting the train carry it. So put your "trunk" of trouble down and let the Overself carry it. Perspectives 24 . 35

Q: Is there no need of effort then?

M: When effort is needed, effort will appear. When effortlessness becomes essential, it will assert itself. You need not push life about. Just flow with it and give yourself completely to the task of the present moment, which is the dying now to the now. For living is dying. Without death life cannot be.

Get hold of the main thing that the world and the self are one and perfect. Only your attitude is faulty and needs readjustment.

I Am That Ch 33

...What we have most to learn at this stage is, in one sense, easy and simple.

Yet in practice, it turns out to be hard and elusive. It is to let go, to cease from striving, to let your will relax, to stop thinking that the Overself is something you must grasp and to let yourself be grasped by it. Moreover, you are not to limit this attitude to the meditation period only, but to bring it into your ordinary life briefly several times a day.

Adventure of Meditation Excerpt and link to whole

... Our dependence on self-effort must be balanced by dependence on Grace. If we rely solely on our own endeavours to better character and develop intuition, we may find ourselves frustrated and unhappy with the result. Grace is to be invoked by making contact through prayer and meditation with the Overself. But the meditation should be of a special kind--what may be called the practice of nonduality. In it you should seek to identify with the universal and infinite power, to forget that you are an individual. 23.6.49

HUMILITY

The humility needed must be immensely deeper than what ordinarily passes for it. We must begin with the axiom that the ego is ceaselessly deceiving us, misleading us, ruling us. We must be prepared to find its sway just as powerful amid our spiritual interests as our worldly ones. We must realize that we have been going from illusion to illusion even when we seemed to progress. 18.3.20

... The very fact you have consciously begun the quest is itself a manifestation of Grace, ... You are not really walking alone. The very love which has awakened within you for the Overself is a reflection of the love which is being shown towards you.

... Thus the very search upon which you have embarked, the studies you are making, and the meditations you are practicing are all inspired by the Overself from the beginning and sustained by it to the end. The Overself is already at work even before you begin to seek it. Indeed you have taken to the quest in unconscious obedience to the divine prompting. And that prompting is the first movement of Grace.

... What is needed to call down Grace is, first, a humility that is utter and complete, deeply earnest and absolutely sincere, secondly, an offering of self to the Overself, a dedication of earthly being to spiritual essence, and, thirdly, a daily practice of devotional exercise. The practices will eventually yield experiences, the aspirations will eventually bring assistance.

Essay on Grace --excerpt
(PB Notebooks 2.9.67)

We who honour philosophy so highly cannot afford to be other than honest with ourselves. We have to acknowledge that the end of all our striving is surrender. No human being can do other than this--an utterly humble prostration, where we dissolve, lose the ego, lose ourselves--the rest is paradox and mystery. 20.5.11

If you ask what reality is, in philosophy's view, the answer must be consciousness. If you further ask what man's work in this life is, the answer must be to become conscious of consciousness as such. But because, ordinarily, consciousness never discloses itself but only its varying states, you can accomplish this work only by adopting extraordinary means. You will have to steel the feelings and still the mind. In short, you will have to deny yourself. 20.3.155

... The deeper way of Wu Wei is to lose the ego by doing nothing to seek truth or to improve oneself; adopting no practice; following no path. The Short Path turns realization over to Overself so that it is not your concern any longer. This does not mean that you do not care whether you find truth or not, but that whereas ordinary care for it arises out of desire of the ego or anxiety of the ego or egoistic need of comfort, escape, or relief, Short Path care arises out of the stillness of mind, the serenity of faith, and the acceptance of the universe. 23.5.228

“Be still and know that I am God” is the key to the enigma of truth, for it sums up the whole of the Short Path. Paradox is the final revelation. For this is “non-doing.” Rather is it a “letting-be,” a non-interference by your egoistic will, a silencing of all the mental agitation and effort.

There is nothing to seek and find, for there is nothing lost. Relax and watch the “I am.” Reality is just behind it. Keep quiet, keep silent; it will emerge, or, rather, it will take you in. I Am That Ch
99

This notion that we must wait and wait while we slowly progress out of enslavement into liberation, out of ignorance into knowledge, out of the present limitations into a future union with the Divine, is only true if we let it be so. But we need not. We can shift our identification from the ego to the Overself in our habitual thinking, in our daily reactions and attitudes, in our response to events and the world. We have thought our way into this unsatisfactory state; we can unthink our way out of it. By incessantly remembering what we really are, here and now at this very moment, we set ourselves free. Why wait for what already is? 23.1.1

Q: Will meditation help me to reach your state?

M: Meditation will help you to find your bonds, loosen them, untie them and cast your moorings. When you are no longer attached to anything, you have done your share. The rest will be done for you.

Q: By whom?

M: By the same power that brought you so far, that prompted your heart to desire truth and your mind to seek it. It is the same power that keeps you alive. You may call it Life or the Supreme. Ch.17

Q: How do I get at it?

M: You need not get at it, for you are it. It will get at you, if you give it a chance. Let go your attachment to the unreal and the real will swiftly and smoothly step into its own. Stop imagining yourself being or doing this or that and the realisation that you are the source and heart of all will dawn upon you. With this will come great love which is not choice or predilection, nor attachment, but a power which makes all things love-worthy and lovable. I Am That Ch 1

Every person you encounter is God in disguise; God is hiding within each person. When you remove the filters of your mind, God is right there in front of you.

By this simple act of unlearning all that you know--all that you have acquired by thinking, by remembrance, by measurements, by comparison, and by judgement--when you return to the mere emptying of the consciousness of its contents of thoughts and ideas, and when you come to the pure consciousness in itself, then only can you rest in the Great Silence. 24.4.78

... The very fact you have consciously begun the quest is itself a manifestation of Grace, ... You are not really walking alone. The very love which has awakened within you for the Overself is a reflection of the love which is being shown towards you.

... Thus the very search upon which you have embarked, the studies you are making, and the meditations you are practicing are all inspired by the Overself from the beginning and sustained by it to the end. The Overself is already at work even before you begin to seek it. Indeed you have taken to the quest in unconscious obedience to the divine prompting. And that prompting is the first movement of Grace.

2.9.67 another part in sl 39

There is some kind of a distinction between his higher individuality and the Universal Infinite out of which it is rayed, whatever the Vedantins may say. And this distinction remains in his highest mystical state, which is not one of total absorption and utter destruction of this individuality but the mergence of its own will in the universal will, the closest intimacy of its own being with the universal being. 25.2.200

This whittling away of the ego may occupy the entire lifetime and not seem very successful even then, yet it is of the highest value as a preparatory process for the full renunciation of the ego when--by Grace--it suddenly rises up in the heart. (8:4.422)

Where the heart goes, there soon or late the other faculties will follow. This is why it is so important to let the Overself take possession of the heart by its total surrender in, and to, the Stillness. 24.4.90

It is the unique contribution of the Short Path that it takes advantage of the Overself's ever-present offer of Grace.

Those who look for advancement by looking for inner experiences or for discoveries of new truth do well. But they need to understand that all this is still personal, still something that concerns the ego even if it be the highest and best part of the ego. Their greatest advance will be made when they cease holding the wish to make any advance at all, cease this continual looking at themselves, and instead come to a quiet rest in the simple fact that God is, until they live in this fact alone... 23.5.222

... That will transfer their attention from self to Overself and keep them seeing its presence in everyone's life and its action in every event. The more they succeed in holding to this insight, the less will they ever be troubled or afraid or perplexed again; the more they recognize and rest in the divine character, the less will they be feverishly concerned about their own spiritual future. 23.5.222

Why is it that so many people are so unaware of their own higher existence? The answer is that their faculty of awareness itself is that spiritual existence. Whatever they know, people know through the consciousness within them. That in them which knows anything is their divine element. The power of knowing--whether it be a thought that is known, a complex of thoughts such as memories, a thing such as a landscape--is a divine power for it derives from the higher self which they possess. (21:2.136)

Recognition is a prominent feature on the Short Path. The Overself is always there but only those on the Short Path recognize this truth and think accordingly. The world is always with us, but only those on the Short Path recognize the miracle that it is. In moments of exaltation, uplift, awe, or satisfaction--derived from music, art, poetry, landscape, or otherwise--thousands of people have received a Glimpse; but only those on the Short Path recognize it for what it really is. 23.1.114

This is our real being. We sought for it, prayed to it, and communed with it in the past as if it were something other than, and apart from, ourself. Now we know that it was ourself, that there is no need for us to do any of these things. All we needs is to recognize what we are and to realize it at every moment. 22.6.264

Nonduality in its extreme form is not to the taste of the masses. Instinctively they shy away from it. Let the two views accommodate each other. While these levels of reference ought not to be mixed together when theory and principles are concerned, there is one way in which there is considerable profit to be gained if the timeless eternal and universal atmosphere of Vedanta is kept at the back of the mind when the worldly problems have to be met. They can be met with this remembrance that one's true being is, and will be, safe and unaffected, and that whatever decision or action we are called to make, the first thing is to keep calm. 23.5.157

The Psalmist's advice, "Be still, and know that I am God," may be taken on one level--the mystical--as a reference to the ultimate state achieved intermittently in contemplation; but on another level--the philosophical--the reference can be carried even deeper. For here it is a continuous state achieved not by quietening the mind for half an hour but by emptying the mind for all time of agitation and illusion. Towards this end the cultivation of calmness amid all circumstances makes a weighty contribution. 24.2.27

From: 'The Gift' –Hafiz--_Translated by Daniel Ladinsky

Don't surrender your loneliness so quickly let it cut more deep.

Let it ferment and season you as few human or even divine ingredients can Something missing in my heart tonight has made my eyes so soft my voice so tender
my need of God
absolutely clear.

The limitation of the Long Path is that it is concerned only with thinning down, weakening, and reducing the ego's strength. It is not concerned with totally deflating the ego. Since this can be done only by studying the ego's nature metaphysically, seeing its falsity, and recognizing its illusoriness, which is not even done by the Short Path, then all the endeavours of the Short Path to practise self-identification with the Overself are merely using imagination and suggestion to create a new mental state that, while imitating the Overself's state, does not actually transcend the ego-mind but exists within it still... 23.5.206

... So a third phase becomes necessary, the phase of getting rid of the ego altogether; this can be done only by the final dissolving operation of Grace, which the man has to request and to which he has to give his consent. To summarize the entire process, the Long Path leads to the Short Path, and the Short Path leads to the Grace of an unbroken egoless consciousness. 23.5.206

Time and Timeless

It is a long journey from the condition of seeker to that of sage. But this is true only so far as we ascribe reality to time. To those who know that our human existence is a movement through events, but that the human being in its essence transcends all events and dwells in timelessness, this journey may be considerably shortened or swiftly brought to its destination. For that, the thorough understanding of philosophy and its incessant application to oneself is required. 20.4.88

The declaration of Jesus that whosoever will save his life shall lose it, is uncompromising. It is an eternal truth as well as a universal one. It is needed by the naive as well as by the sophisticated. ...

Such an achievement may seem very far off from human possibility and indeed we find in history that not many have either cared, or been able, to realize it, for it is far too painful to the ego. But the metaphysical truths of successive rebirth on earth and of the unreality of time should give some comfort here. The first teaches a great patience while men labour daily at the task of remaking themselves. The second teaches that the Overself is even now ever present with all, that in the eternal Now there is no futurity and that theoretically the possibility of its realization does not necessarily belong to some distant rebirth. 8.4.230

We are all here walking each other home.
You are loved just by being who you are.
You don't have to do anything to earn it.

When a person comes to their real senses, they will recognize that they have only one problem: "How can I come into awareness of, and oneness with, my true being?" For it is to lead to this final question that other questions and problems have staged the road of the whole life. This answered, the way to answer all the other ones which beset us, be they physical or financial, intellectual or familiar, will open up. Hence Jesus' statements: "Seek ye first the kingdom of heaven and all these things shall be added unto you,"... 1.1.130

In first, the discovery of the Overself, and second, the surrender to it, we fulfil the highest purpose of life on this earth. 1.1.83

If there is anything worth studying by human being, after the necessary preliminary studies of how to exist and survive in this world healthily and wisely, it is the study of our own consciousness--not a cataloguing of the numerous thoughts that play within it, but a deep investigation of its nature itself, its own unadulterated pure self. 1.1.81

When the masculine and feminine temperaments within us are united, completed, and balanced, when masculine power and feminine passivity are brought together inside the person and knowledge and reverence encircle them both, then wisdom begins to dawn in the soul. The ineffable reality and the mentalist universe are then understood to be non-different from one another.

When duality is blended with, and within, unity it is the true jivanmukta realization. The One is then experienced as the Two but known to be really the One.
